She went on to take a position with the State of NJ, Division of Human Services where she worked until her retirement in 2005.

After retirement, she spent time doing some of her favorite hobbies. She loved to listen to classical music and jazz, was an avid reader, especially of Steven King, and loved crossword puzzles and word searches. Her favorite

Johanne was a great mom and person and was loved by many people. She was a social butterfly and could start a conversation with anyone. Many of the students she taught, thought she was one of the best teachers in school. She was one of those people who would give you the shirt of her back, or feed someone before she fed herself.
