“ I met John at Spring Creek Runoff Bar where I was working back in 1980. In 1982 Barry Needham and I were married and bought a home in WagonWheel subdivision in Fort Collins. John bought a house just down the road and we were nbrs. We were good friends and had a love of music. He turned me on to Jack Mack and the Heartattacks and we would love playing that album, it made us so happy! It's funny, I hadn't seen him in a long long time, I sent him a Christmas card this year and he called me! I went to see him at the same home he lived in since the early 80's. The visit was reminiscent of our younger years and I'm so glad I got to hug him, saying I would come visit often. I went on vacation for 3 weeks, came back and thought just yesterday that I needed to reach out again and go have a nice long visit. Found out this morning from the newspaper that he had passed on Super Bowl Sunday. RIP my friend, we had great conversations and great times together! You will be missed buddy...
