“ It's been 2 months since you left us, Dad, and we miss you. Life is different now, and there isn't a day that goes by that we don't think of you. I hope you are watching over us. Love and miss you terribly.

“ Of the countless wonderful memories I have of my dad, some of the best are the many times we would prank each other. From the time I was young, he and I would try to sneak up on one another to scare the other senseless. This carried on well into my adulthood. Other pranks involved trying to slip a miniature toy helmet into luggage or hide it in the house of whoever was visiting whom. The idea was to make sure the other person was stuck with it. Very silly, but we came up with some elaborate ways of hiding that thing. I could go on for hours with stories of our times together. From hunting and fishing, to always trying to best him in every game. He never let me win, either. The wins I got felt so good because of that. Thanks for all of those memories and thousands more, dad. I love you.
