“ I was so blessed to have Reuben as my next door neighbor in Fort Collins for many, many years. We shared countless conversations over the top of the fence, a few on the back patio, and a few in the Reuben and Alicia's kitchen. Reuben was warm, friendly, and funny! You could count on him to always have a good story and make you laugh. Or joke lovingly about Alicia, the love of his life. He really enjoyed fresh vegetables and fruit, and was always fishing for ripe, juicy peaches from the trees in my backyard. And he loved fishing up the Poudre River! From his stories, you could tell how much he loved his son and daughter and his grandchildren -- family was everything. His home was truly his castle, and he and Alicia were always undertaking home improvement projects, where he did much of the work himself, spending hours outside in the yard and garden and in his immaculately tidy garage and workshop. Everyone always (and truly) says that their house is the most beautiful one on the street. He set a high standard for everyone else on the street to aspire to, and he cared about the neighborhood community deeply. I suppose I'm trying to say that he was the best neighbor you could ever have. Even after a significant health incident a number of years ago, Reuben showed such willpower, courage, and determination in order to regain his strength so he could do as much as he did before. With Alicia, they were my dream neighbors who became my dear friends. I will always treasure having known him and will miss him dearly. I offer my sincerest condolences to his family for their loss.
