“ Unlike most adults, who either find fault with or else don't care about their kids' friends, Ruth always made me feel like it was not only okay to be me, but that being me was a good thing. I think she may have been some sort of saint, spreading unconditional love and self-acceptance, because I can still feel it forty years later. Nobody's ever made me feel more welcome than Charles and Ruth did, and I always counted Mark and Sharon as among the luckiest kids to have had them as parents. I am so sorry she had to eventually get old and die, because she made the world a far better, kinder place. - Rex Dean
